Every human being has a right to health and health care.

For more than 30 years, Health Alliance International has worked in solidarity with ministries of health in order to build the capacity of countries to lead their own, effective public sector health systems. From the very beginning, we have done what many global health NGOs have neglected to do: focus on strengthening public sector health systems by listening to and serving the needs articulated by countries and advocating for policies and practices that promote social, economic, and health equity.

What makes HAI different is they help [us at] Bouaké Eveil integrate our work into health centers, highlighting the important role of community counselors in the continuum of care.

- BRAHIMA SIDIBÉ
EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR, BOUAKÉ EVEL
HAI collaborates with Timor-Leste’s Ministry of Health and National Institute of Health to design and launch maternal and newborn care Learning Labs for National Health System birthing teams across Timor-Leste. Learning Labs use in-service simulations, case studies, and role-playing to extend critical maternal and child health curriculum beyond centralized trainings and into the health facilities where birth attendants work.

It is necessary to develop research capabilities on a national level. The development of technical and management capabilities inside the country can increase the use of implementation research and strengthen the public sector.
